Cleveland Leader. The inauguration of the Big Four fast train between this city and St. Louis promises to open a season of competition between the lines in this territory for Western business that may do wonders in the way of quickening schedules and making close connection. Heretofore, with a scheduled time of between fifteen and sixteen hours to St. Louis, the Big Four has been on an equal footing for Western business with other lines which have been operating through Chicago. The latter city has been the acknowledged gateway to the far West for certain business, although a good portion of the travel went through St. | roads Louis and Cincinnati, especially when the objective point was the middle West or the Southwest. Some of the connections for cago and then down to St. Louis and then on to Kansas City. With the Big Four ter than an hour and a half and with a sary to attempt to overcome. The pro gramme is now that these other lines will adjust their schedules to meet this opposition. Now that the railroads have forbidden themselves the privilege of equalizing conditions by making a difference in rates, the only way out of these difficulties will be through the medium of speed wars, which are likely to be numerous and flerce.

The payment of commissions, says the Kansas City Journal, is being continued under another name. Coupon ticket agents and brokers are being paid salaries, the amount of which is regulated by the business they have turned over to the roads paying them during the previous month This is just as much a breach of agreement as if the payments were called commissions, because the presidents' agreement was particular to specify that remuneration should not be paid in any shape or form. The payment of these commis sions is having a marked effect on the business of the roads paying them, so much se that it is claimed the action cannot be ignored. One strange part of these reports is that some of the strong lines are accused of having taken the initiative in making the payments. It is said there will be a vigorous investigation into the mat-

Mamie Arnold, alias Beck, was arrested by Detectives Asch and Griffin. fugitive and is wanted at Cincinnati on the charge of stealing $350. She has relatives in this city and has been stopping at the Sherman House for three or four days. She was arrested when she was about to change her place of residence. Two hundred and forty dollars was found in her possession, but it was not secured by Asch without a hard struggle. The woman told the detectives that she lived in Cincinnati and about ten days ago, at the solicitation of several doctors, she married a man named Beck upon condition that she be given $350 in cash as soon as the ceremony was performed. She got the $350 and after living with him for two days left him and came to Indianapolis. There is thought to te more to the case than she tells. The Cincinnati authorities will be here to-day to take her back.

EVIDENCE TO SHOW HE STRUCK WILLIAMS IN SELF DEFENSE.

Argument in the Case Commence Suit for Dissolution of Partnership-The Courts.

The defense in the case of Wayman White, charged with the murder of George Williams, rested yesterday afternoon without putting White on the stand. The argument was taken up, but was not finished when court adjourned, and will be continued to-day. The defense introduced evidence to show Williams was struck on the head with a club by White in self-defense and in defending his brother, Maurice White. Bert Ward and Joseph Patterson testifled that they heard Williams say he paid his way into the hall and that he would kill somebody or get in, and that Williams had something that glittered in his hand. The fight started between Maurice White and Williams and occurred on the sidewalk in front of the colored Odd Fellows' Hall on Indiana avenue. Here Patterson said he heard Wayman White say to his brother, "Kid, you're cut," and then hit Williams over the head with his cane. Maurice White testified that his brother acted in self-defense. Lewis Lo-Fred Martin, William H. Johnson and Mrs. Belle Harrington testified for the State and said that White followed Williams a distance down the street and beat him over the head.

Israel J. Conarroe Sues for Dissolution of Partnership.

Israel J. Conarroe filed suit, yesterday, against William T. McCarty for dissolution of partnership in a cancer cure business in which they are engaged, an accounting of the debts that have been collected and for scription in deed and quieting title to propthe appointment of a receiver. He asserts erty. that the agreement was that they shot share equally the expenses and profits of the business and that the partnership could be dissolved at any time either party desired. He alleges that April 6, 1900, Mc-Carty took entire possession of the property and books, demanded his keys to the office and has since attempted to exclude him from their place of business. He also alleges that McCarty began, in March, to appropriate money collected for the firm to his own use, that he is in debt to the firm and that he refuses to make an ac-

He asserted that Mc-Carty represented that the business was paying $250 a month, but at the end of two months the net receipts were $2.

Colored Woman Brings Action Against a Grocer.

Polly Hale, a colored woman, living at 1515 Archer street, brought suit yesterday in Justice Stout's court against a grocer named Ingleman, who has a stand at the South Side market, for an account of 15 cents. She claimed she purchased of him some evaporated peaches and 15 cents' worth of granulated sugar, but found, as she went to sweeten her peaches, that the sugar was cornmeal. She thought the amount was too much "for a poor washerwoman to lose," and hence the suit, as the grocer refused to "make good."

HOG CHOLERA. Purdue Experiment Station Will Not Indorse So-Called Remedies.

"Several years ago," said Prof. C. Plumb, director of Purdue University agricultural experiment station, "when lecturing before Indiana farmers' institutes Mr. S. H. Todd, of Ohio, advocated the feeding of meat from hogs that had died of cholera to healthy pigs. The claim made was that feeding this diseased flesh produced a mild form of the disease, and the pigs fed the same thereafter would be free of cholera. This view advanced by Mr. Todd caused considerable comment. Apparently, however, the method of treatment adopted by him was not entirely a success, for in March, 1899, he wrote me I say it was not the cholera. It was much worse. I lost forty head of hogs.' This, however, was perhaps just as much a case of cholera as many swine breeders re-"At the present time an attempt is being made by Indiana parties to sell on the market much such a method of treatment as that adopted by Mr. Todd. The claim is made that pregnant sows fed flesh from cholera diseased swine will have the malady in a mild form and that the unborn pigs will also be affected, so that thereafter they will be free from cholera and be immune, as it is termed. While no experiments have been conducted by disinterested parties to prove the effectiveness of this method, reasoning from comparison, as shown by experience with other diseases. both with humans and animals, it is entirely unlikely that this method will prove a preventive. Further, this station is in possession of facts proving that pigs born from sows affected with cholera while pregnant have died from the disease long

"Recently numerous communications have been received by this station inquiring concerning this method of treatment, and we now have a letter which implies that this station has indorsed this prac-

"Hog cholera is a contagious disease, and when once it secures a foothold in a herd usually runs a course, and after much tatality becomes more or less extinct, especially where serious attempts are made to stamp out the disease. "For generations hog cholera has ravaged herds of swine in America and for many years the disease has been carefully studied by the best authorities on animals' diseases, and thus far no certain remedy based on extended trial for a term of years has been brought out. The cause of the disease is understood, but a fairly certain method of prevention or cure is not as yet demonstrated. Notwithstanding this fact. numerous men calling themselves doctors, many of whom are quacks, are constantly loisting on the farmers at exorbitant prices what they claim to be sure cures for coolera. Enormous sums of money have been paid in the aggregate by farmers for so-called cholera remedies that cost a mere trifle to the manufacturers. "The Indiana experiment station will indorse no hog cholera cemedy now on the narket, and this bulletin is a reply to the numerous inquiries addressed us by swine breeders on this subject. The most that we can recommend is absolute cleanliness about the pig yards and lots and the lib. eral use of disinfectants."
